SYSTEM KEPT WOOD AND ROOSEVELT
OUT OF THE GREAT WAR

System, in its favorable sense, is responsible for General Wood, and Former President Roosevelt staying at home during the world war. This conclusion has been generally accepted for a long time, and it is strengthened by the disclosures made in the new book "Woodrow Wilson as I know him" by Joseph P. Tumulty, Private Secretary to Mr. Wilson when he was President, and when he was Governor of New Jersey. In speaking of the attempt of Col. Roosevelt to get a commission as commander of an overseas division Mr. Tumulty says in effect that as the system of the selective draft would have suffered, had Roosevelt been allowed to raise an army of volunteers, President Wilson, as commander-in-chief of the army and navy, felt that Roosevelt must sacrifice his ambition to the general good of the cause having for its end the defeat of Germany.

The description given of the conference held between Wilson and Roosevelt on this matter, to which Mr. Tumulty was a party, as given by the writer, leaves nothing to be desired for cordiality and good will as between the two prominent statesmen. And but for the fact that, a man purporting to be a confidential friend of Roosevelt saw fit later to print in a book of his own, things indicating that at bottom Roosevelt was hostile to Mr. Wilson, history would contain little but pleasantness between the two men over Roosevelt's great disappointment.

In the case of the refusal of Wilson to send General Leonard Wood overseas, Mr. Tumulty makes it plain, that had Wood been sent, the hand of General Pershing would have had to have been forced, as Pershing did not include the name of Wood among the Generals he desired sent abroad. It is interesting to note that despite all others to the contrary, including his Secretary, Mr. Tumulty, President Wilson stoutly refused to interfere with the plans of the chosen commander of the American expeditionary army. Wilson told Tumulty that he cared absolutely nothing for the how raised because Wood was kept at home, that he was for winning the war, and that he felt that to do so he must back General Pershing to the limit.

Always circumstances and great far-reaching plans are bigger and more important than any man, or any two men's high ambitions, even if the two men crossed by the military rules had to be General Leonard Wood.

A HELPFUL SUGGESTION

In view of the nation wide effort being made to reduce taxes, the following from The Commercial Appeal editorial columns of October 27, will prove helpfully suggestive:

Last spring a planter went into a bank and told the banker that he had to have $5,000 to make his crop. The banker told him he could not get it. The farmer then said, "I can make no crop." The banker then said, "I will let you have $500." That is all the farmer got. He made his crop, and he made a very good crop.

The members of the county commission and other county officials, who have to do with the spending of money stated that they are just bound to have so much money to run the county next year.

The taxpayers, we believe, will not be able to furnish the money unless property is confiscated. So the county commissioners and other county officials should get along on less money.

It is amazing how far we can make $1 go if we have to. We knew of a man who traveled from New York to Memphis, and, after paying for his sleeping car ticket and railroad ticket, spent $7 for meals and tips on the journey. A year later the same man rode from New York to Memphis in a day coach. He had 60c in his pocket when he left New York. He had 5 cents left when he got to Memphis. He did not want to arrive in Memphis "broke." Later on he related that his diet consisted of three sandwiches, four bananas and 15 cents' worth of apples; water was free.

The county can get along with as little money this year as it spent last year.

A LEADER WHO HATES
THOSE HE WOULD LEAD

It will be recalled that when through Mr. Hoover, this country purposed to aid the destitute in Russia, that Maxim Gorky, the celebrated Russian writer and publicist, was appealed to, for aid in making the enterprise a success. Gorky has been regarded as able and willing to aid his countrymen and despite his extreme views, many people have regarded him as a possible savior of his country, when at last the Soviet usurpers admitted their failure. This belief was strengthened when Gorky announced that while he was a communist, he believed his theories would fail, as they were put into practice by Lenin and Trotsky. A recent speech of Gorky, regardless of the truth or falsity of the cruel charge contained therein, marks him as a man unfit for responsibility or leadership.

He says that he "hates the common people of Russia." He says that as barbarous as have been the Soviet leaders, they have not been nearly so cruel as the peasant class would have been had they been in power. "Our peasants are brutal and debased," he says "and hardly human. You may think the present Russian government is cruel, but believe me, such cruelty is nothing to the cruelty of the Russian peasants. I hate them."

With Gorky given up to be one of the outstanding leaders of the fallen Russian people, at tions a leader may have, if he lacks love for his people, he positively cannot lead. No great master of men and nations from the days of Alexander the Great, to the present time ever accomplished anything, unless at least he attempted to, and professed to love their followers. Gorky adds "I entertain little hope because I know that the vast mass of our peasantry is a barrier to all progress."

The common people of Russia cannot possibly be as bad at heart as this one of their so-called leaders says. They may be desperate indeed, because of the many abuses they have suffered under the Czars and under Lenin and Trotsky, but they are certainly not so bad as to deserve the hatred of an intelligent man like Gorky. Unless he can bring himself to feel differently toward the Russian peasants, Gorky can never lead them for no man who hates can lead.

EDISON'S THEORY

Thomas A. Edison is quoted as saying that life is becoming so complex that he shudders to think what will happen in the next fifty years. He could have come closer than that period and been correct as those who will think now. There is not a city, town or hamlet but that has problems that call for serious thought and patient consideration. Problems of home, problems of church, problems of state, national problems, that cannot be sidestepped or pushed aside.

All of these demand solution, and must be solved if we continue as a free and happy people. Law making departments have become a place where there is too much rancor, too much pulling asunder, too much see-sawing and not enough concert of action to make wholesome legislation that will stand the test of time, and meet the demands of the hour.

We honestly believe that what is needed is a few more genuine statesmen, that will leave self entirely in the background; men with a vision of the future; men who will stand for the principle of right, like the lamented John T. Morgan did and exhaust the hours of debate, rather than accede to a thing that he knew was not right.

The leaves are falling. Having fulfilled their mission they are hurrying to their winter home at the trunk of the mother tree, to give warmth to the life principle hidden in mother earth. A stimulating effect will be seen next Spring when the branches are again adorned with verdure. How in contrast to some who call on the soil to yield up the best, and take all, never returning anything back to nourish and feed the place that gives them food and raiment.

Those in authority in many instances make extravagant statements in regard to matters of which they are totally ignorant. Great injustices in nearly every instance done those who reside in that particular section, and know conditions, and are in better position to know the real solution than those from the outside, who speak in doubt from a biased opinion.

WHEN NERVES
ARE UNSTRUNG

Gude's Pepto-Mangan
Builds Up Vigor
and Strength

There are times when men and women cannot help losing strength. They try to do too much or they lose sleep or do not eat enough food that nourishes. Blood becomes sluggish because poisons clog it. It is not long before nerves get unstrung.

The best way to start a change for the better is to take a course of Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It builds the blood. The weakness from a lack of red cells in the blood is overcome. Gude's Pepto-Mangan sends a fresh supply of red cells streaming through the blood. Good blood, pure and free from poisons, starts building vigor and strength. Sleep is better, appetite keener, so that the body becomes properly nourished. Druggists have some length, it being finally agreed to leave it to the authorities of the city schools, the American Legion, the parade committee, and other organizations that may be interested, with their findings to be reported later. The proposed foot ball game was left in charge of the parade committee. When the official program to be carried out was discussed, it was agreed that the exercises open with the "Star Spangled Banner," all standing. After the invocation, Melvin Hutson, master of ceremonies, will be introduced, then a song, "My Native Land," by the Melody Eight, then the regularly invited speakers. The address from the American Federation of Labor will be read at some time during the exercise. Other features of the program will be announced later, including the cavalry parade under command of Captain Richard Burleson, of Hartsville.

The following welcome communication was read:

This is to advise any one concerned that the Disarmament Program Committee have arranged with the directors of the Albany-Decatur Community Club to use the tabernacle building on the afternoon of November 11, 1921. This committee agrees to pay a reasonable charge for use of lights, should they occupy the building after lights are necessary, otherwise there will be no charge.

DOUGLAS McLEAN COMES TO THE PRINCESS TODAY

Several of the most popular of screen players, including Beatrice Burnham, Margaret Livingston, Wade Boteler, Charles Mailles and Molly McConnell, are in the cast of "The Home Stretch." Mr. McLean appears as Johnny Hardwick, a worshiper at the shrine of Chance. Miss Burnham, as Margaret Warren, a pretty little "small town" girl, constitutes Johnny's reason for abandoning the turf and trying his hand at a number of other exciting occupations. Chas. Mailles, conceded to be a forceful character actor, has the role of Mr. Wilson, a retired business man. Margaret Livingston is seen as "Molly," a sporty friend of Johnny's, who causes him no end of trouble. The other members of the cast offer smaller, although equally creditable characterizations.

MAY ALLISON VISITS STAR

THEATRE IN "EXTRAVAGANCE"

In "Extravagance," which comes to the Star Theatre today, critics agree that May Allison, the lovely screen star, has a vehicle fitting her consummately. The picture has met with one reception—that of unqualified favor.

"Extravagance" is a picture vivid with universal interest, limning a woman who callously demanded the world's best things, while her husband slaved to earn a livelihood; it has a scope and appeal far exceeding anything this star has essayed in the past.

"PAYING THE PIPER" IS FEAT- TURE AT PRINCESS TUESDAY

An excellent cast of players was chosen to interpret the various roles of "Paying the Piper." Aside from Dorothy Dickson, there are Rod La-Roque, an experienced actor who has been acting for the screen for six years; Alma Tell, a New York stage beauty; George Fawcett, a veteran of the stage and screen; Robert Schable, a tried actor with considerable screen experience; Katherine Emmet, a well known actress and at one time leading woman for John Barrymore. In addition to those named, there are many others whose names do not appear in the cast, but who do excellent work in the picture.

"DARDANELLA" COMING TO

PRINCESS NEXT TUESDAY

"A Jim Jam Jam of a Jazzy Jam-boree" is the way Jack Curtis, veteran press agent of many New York successes, describes the McGregor Company's International musical comedy success, "Dardanella," which is booked for a presentation at the Princess Tuesday, November 8th.

Mr. Curtis is sponsor for the statement that "Dardanella" is playing to more paid admissions than any contemporary musical show touring the one night stands. The success of the show is so great that a limit of six seats to any one individual is necessary in order to curb the operations of a band of theatrical speculators who have been buying up the choice seats and selling them at a marked increase.

Improvement in Convict Camps

(Montgomery Bureau Albany-Decatur Daily.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 31—Conditions in the state convict camps of Alabama have shown a great improvement in recent years and since the investigating committee of the legislature made its inspection in 1919, according to a report filed with the legislature during the closing days of an inspection which the committee made just prior to the assembling of the law-makers in special session.

The committee reported that the new system saves the state thousands of dollars annually and affords better treatment for the convicts. It recommended that the state take over the supervision of county convicts in order that they might receive better protection. The legislature refused to amend the law so as to provide this supervision.

William F. Feagin, state warden-general, was commended highly for his work in the convict department and the committee told the legislature that if Mr. Feagin can be retained in the position and the reforms already started can be continued "the state of Alabama will have as good or better system for handling criminals than any other state in the Union."

BOYS CONFERENCE AT HUNTSVILLE IS BROUGHT TO END

HUNTSVILLE, Oct. 31—The Older Boys conference on "Christian Training and Opportunities Ahead" closed in this city Sunday night with an address by Dr. W. D. Weatherford, president of the College for Y. M. C. A. workers at Nashville. Dr. Weatherford was the principal speaker throughout all the sessions which began on Friday last. He was assisted by Fred T. Barnett, of Vanderbilt University, and H. E. Montague, secretary of Y. M. C. A. boys work for the state of Georgia. The address of Dr. Weatherford last night dealt with the essentials of character building. He defined character as "the momentum gained by our wilful deeds."

Sunday Morning Address
In his eleven o'clock address, Dr. Weatherford spoke on "Principles that should guide a young man in choosing a calling."

"All work needful alike, hence honorable alike. No work can be despised with impunity. Work will be better done when we choose to call none of it 'menial.' The women in the homes will find the servant problem easier when housekeeping is regarded as highly as any other calling under the sun. When women are willing to do their own work, they will find it less difficult to get and keep needful help. God will call each man to some work, hence he is calling you to some definite task. And you should not enter upon the performance of any task to which you are not called," Dr. Weatherford said.

Negative Warnings
"You must not choose your tasks on the basis of 'moral weakness.' In other words, you must not write yourself off the boards as being unworthy of the highest calling. But you must not choose on a basis of selfishness. Certainly you must not just 'drift' into a calling. Drifting destroys character. Characters that momentum I have gained by past acts of choice."

Positive Needs of World
In choosing a profession, the speaker said that young men should be very largely governed by the 'positive needs' of his community. If a blacksmith is needed, don't be a carpenter. If additional lawyers are needed you might be one, but if not, do not study law, just on a sentiment, because 'father' was one.

"In an important sense, choose your calling on the strength of your ability. And by all means choose a calling that will tax you to the limit; and most of all choose your life work under the direction of God's Spirit."

At the opening of the Baraca class, H. E. Montague made an address on "Leadership." He said, "A leader is one who knows the way, and can get others to follow." Mr. Montague said all people led to some extent, either rightly or wrongly. He said there was "conscious and unconscious" leadership. He said that the delegates accept only wise and good leadership. Following the preliminary meeting of the Baraca Bible class of the First Baptist church at ten o'clock of which Prof. S. R. Butler is teacher, all boys who were considering seriously "what was best to be done with their lives" were asked to meet Dr. Weatherford in an upper room of the Grand Theatre. About half of the audience of 250 went up to counsel with Dr. Weatherford.

Games and Banquet
Interspersed with the addresses of counsel at the boys conference were games, social good times and a banquet. Last night the Kiwanis club of Huntsville gave a banquet to the visiting delegates—there were 202 all told—and C. A. Crole, its president, was toastmaster. Two football games were staged during the conference. Both were against the Wills-Taylor private school of Huntsville.

In the first game the Hartselle high school boys won 7 to 0. In the second, the Cullman boys won 2 to 0. In the last game neither side made a touchdown—only a safety saved the game to Cullman. Captain Baird of the Cullman team, was declared to have been the star performer, by the cheer leader, Edgar Ehrensperger, who was temporarily out of the game on account of a broken elbow annexed while playing center in a recent game. Mr. Ehrensperger had a neatly kept memorandum, which disclosed that Albany had 16 delegates at the conference part of the time and Decatur 6, Cullman 21, Albertville 11, Monroe

Why Dicky Pried Himself on Having Bested Bess Dean.

"WHAT'LL be splendid," Mr. Cosgrove gave a relieved sigh. "I got the hett dug this afternoon. How many are going?"

"Just as many as wish," Dicky declared generously. "That best of mine is like one of those old telescopes they used to pack clothing in—there's always room for someone extra."

"Well, let's see," Mr. Cosgrove was radiantly contemplative. His delight in the proposed expedition was patent to everyone. "You and Mrs. Graham, Miss Dean, that's three. How about you, Bob?"

"Do you think you could stand such a trip?" The artist asked the question of Lillian in lieu of an answer. She shook her head.

"I am afraid not, Robert, but that need not—" "Count me out," Robert said decisively, and Pa Cosgrove turned to his wife, his eyes twinkling.

"How about it, Mother?" he asked. "Will you go fishing with us?" "I think I'll manage to struggle along tonight without going," she rejoined a bit tartly.

"Then that makes six of us," her husband went on seemingly undismayed. "For the time and me will sure be on the job. Now remember, you want to put on something old and warm, woolen stockings and sneakers, and take a sweater apiece along, for it gets mighty cool down there on those stones toward morning."

"Are you permitted to fish from the dam at night?" Lillian asked. "I thought—" Mr. Cosgrove put his finger to his lips and drew down his left eyelid in a prodigious wink.

A Tactical Error
"H—ah!" he said. "Don't ask any questions, then you won't know anything if any inquisitive person should ask you anything. But don't any of you worry. I'll take all the responsibility."

"I shall have to go somewhere and buy some sneakers," Bess Dean said, calmly ignoring the fact that I, because she had ruined mine, would have the same errand. "Who's going to volunteer to chauffeur me to the nearest shoe store, and to tell me where it is?"

"Why, Madge has—" Dicky began with usual masculine blindness, but I happened to be sitting near enough to him to enable me to plant a wifely kick upon his ankle, and with a wince he dropped the dangerous subject. I knew that for him to blurt out as I feared he would that I had a pair of sneakers too.

COTTON MARKET
BECOMES ERRATIC

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—Stronger cables from Liverpool, coupled with rather active buying for southern mills and support from Wall Street interests gave the cotton market a firm start today. First prices showed net gains of 17 to 30 points. Japanese interest in the market also brightened the call.

The market attracted much heavy selling, particularly from spot concerns, that shortly after the start a severe reaction occurred during which prices dropped about 20 points from initial levels.

BE WATCHFUL OF COLDS

Monday Health Talk No. 3

By Wooton & Wooton, Chiropractors

A cold, when neglected, may rapidly develop into disease of serious nature and extent. Immediate steps should always be taken to put it in check.

UNCLE BEN SAYS:

"Nevvy, Chicago is a place where ef ye wait for the automobiles to get past, ye'll never cross the street, and ef ye don't wait ye get run over."

Colds are due to retained wastes in the body and the cause usually is sluggish action of liver, kidneys and lungs. The cause of this sluggish action is the impingement, or squeezing, of spinal nerves at the spine. By chiropractic spinal adjustments, this pressure or impingement is removed and the nerves are freed to carry normal impulses of vigor and strength.

Cold and Fever

"I developed a high fever and was so sick I could not raise my head from the pillow. Two chiropractic spinal adjustments changed the course of my trouble. It was quicker work with a cold and fever than I had experienced before."—Hobeh C. Hall, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 1286H.
